

Proceanic Endowed Engineering Scholarship

Established in 2020 by Proceanic Ltd

Howdy!

For many reasons, Proceanic and its CEO, Mark Waller, are pleased to be able to provide an endowed scholarship to Engineering Students at Texas A&M University, Galveston.

Mr. Waller graduated with a Higher National Diploma in Marine Engineering and a 4th Engineers Certificate (Steam & Motor), from South Shields Marine & Technical College in the UK in the mid 1980's. He subsequently gained a Mechanical Engineering Bachelor's Degree, through the Open University, but always considered South Shields to be his Alma Mater.

The college (now known as South Tyneside College) bears an uncanny resemblance to A&M Galveston and provided Mr. Waller with a similar, well rounded engineering education, which has served him well over the last four decades. Mark became a Texas Transplant in 1992, and since then, the Galveston Campus, it's culture, curriculum and mission have always held a nostalgic draw for him.

In 2019, approaching the 4th Quarter of a long and rewarding career in the Maritime/Offshore Industry and during which career he has often been the grateful beneficiary of guidance, support and mentoring from senior colleagues and employers, Mr. Waller was looking for a meaningful way to pay-it-forward to youngsters in the industry.

Since its incorporation in Houston in 2002, Proceanic has hired many A&M Engineering Graduates (Galveston and Main Campus). Aggie Engineers have undoubtedly been instrumental in the success and growth of the company. It made sense, therefore, to direct Proceanic scholarships to a Maroon destination with a Maritime Focus!

Proceanic provides Engineering, Project Management and Underwater Inspection Services to the Offshore and Maritime Industries and now has offices in Houston,

Singapore, Malaysia and Brazil, and has strong business presences in Nigeria, Indonesia, Mexico and other locations.

The smaller size of the A&M Galveston Campus, the personal connection and the always-enthusiastic response of Students, Faculty and the Texas A&M Foundation made the endowment an easy choice for Proceanic scholarship contributions.

We look forward to continuing our strong bond with TAMUG, supporting students in as many ways as we can, and having many more Aggies join our Proceanic Team.

Gig Em!
Mark Waller
